MOTOR CAR RAID BY REVENUE MEN

Made Quick Trip to Louisa County and Got Six Gallons of Apple Brandy.

FOUND SECRET TRAP DOOR

Miss Anthony, Who Once Defied Officers, Demanded That Search Warrant Be Read.

Invading the wilds of Louisa county yesterday morning, Colonel W. H. Chapman and three revenue officers captured several gallons of illicit brandy on the premises of S. B. Anthony, who was recently indicted in the United States Circuit Court for violating the internal revenue laws. Revenue Officers Chapman, Atkins, Carter and Williams conducted the raid. They went to Louisa county in the automobile of William E. Gordon, of the Gordon Motor Company. Mr. Gordon was anxious to see the "revenue" at work, so he took the party in his car, leaving Richmond just ahead of the Washington Post endurance run party.

The officers searched Anthony's premises from top to bottom, but failed to find any whiskey or brandy. However, they discovered a secret trap door in a closet which led to an improvised cellar, where it is believed many a jug and keg of brandy has been concealed. As the party was about to give up the hunt a man was discovered running across a field with two jugs in his hands.

After a lively chase he was captured with the jugs. He said his name is Henry Harris. He was not arrested, but will probably be later, when S. B. and Bernard Anthony are taken into custody. The two jugs contained six gallons of old apple brandy.

Girl Defied Officers.
Last winter revenue officers captured a brandy still on Anthony's place, where Miss Anthony was living. Besides the usual standard looking in a snowstorm and defied the revenue officers to move her. Not having a search warrant they did not combat the husky girl's right to sit on a barrel in a snowstorm. Returning later, however, a still was found and the Anthony was arrested.

Miss Anthony was on hand yesterday and insisted on a search warrant being read to her before she consented for the house of her father to be examined. While the reading was going on Harris was standing in the doorway with the big jug. It did not take long for the legal instrument to be read, and the man with the brandy failed to make his escape.

The Anthony men were absent yesterday. Colonel Chapman loaded the brandy in a automobile and in less than two hours a distance of forty miles was traversed back to Richmond over the worst kind of roads. It will be necessary for the revenue agents to make another trip to Louisa county to serve the warrants upon the Anthonys and Harris.

GOVERNOR TO GRADUATES

Will Deliver Baccalaureate Address to Woman's College To-Night.
Governor William Hodges Mann will to-night deliver the baccalaureate address to the graduating class of the Woman's College at the Academy of Music. The commencement exercises began at 8:15 o'clock.

Two scores of young women will receive their degrees from the institution, some of them taking very high honors. The diplomas will be presented by President James Nelson. The board of trustees of the college met yesterday afternoon, the meeting being well attended. Nothing of any public importance was taken up. An adjourned meeting of the board will be held on July 1, when it is possible that some important steps may be taken.

Pardon Requested.

A pardon is being asked for Gilbert S. Lomas, of Shenandoah county, who is serving a two-year term in the State Penitentiary for a serious offense. Seven of the jurors have asked for clemency for Lomas, who has served more than half his term. The Governor will refer the matter to the trial judge and the Commonwealth's Attorney.

AEROPLANE DIDN'T DO LIKE AT OUR GREAT STATE FAIR

People Who Kicked About Willard's Little Jumps Hardly Believed Same Type of Car Took Curtiss From New York to Albany.

More than passing interest is taken in Richmond in the latest aeroplane flight from Albany to New York, made on Sunday by Glenn H. Curtiss, for it was an aeroplane just like his, operated by his own right hand man, that thousands of people saw here during the fair last October. As the plane flew over to any one, the plane that fluttered around the race-course at the fair grounds is the exact simile of that in which Curtiss made his record-breaking journey. The machine seen here was constructed in the workshop of Curtiss at Hammondsport, N. Y., and its operator was Foster Willard, who is a very intimate helper of the famous aviator.

To say that this last flight of Curtiss will be a surprise to many people who saw his machine here is putting it conservatively. When the aeroplane made its daily flights here, it never did rise more than 100 feet from the earth, and it contented itself with gliding around the race-course for flights that took a very few minutes. Many on-lookers were bitterly disappointed, and a general protest was entered against the short, low trips made by the aeroplane.

FLOWERS AND LOVE FOR HONORED DEAD

Governor Is Orator at Memorial Celebration at Hollywood.

VIRGINIA IS HOME OF GREAT

State Can Produce Another Washington or Lee if Nation Needs.

Hard by the new-made grave of Captain Lawson, who carried the flag of the First Virginia up the hill at Gettysburg in advance of the army of Lee, five thousand of the people of the capital of the Confederacy gathered yesterday afternoon to do honor once more to the memory of the dead and to the presence of the living soldiers of the Lost Cause. Governor Mann was the speaker of the occasion. It is hardly necessary to say that the women of the Hollywood Memorial Association were in charge.

Of course it rained. This is proverbial of Memorial Day. But the two small showers which fell, one during the progress of the parade and the other at the beginning of the exercises, were hardly enough to dampen the spirits of those who had gathered at the cemetery or to more than freshen the blossoms which loving hands had placed upon the graves of the heroes.

Graves Decorated.
All day long the work of decoration at Hollywood was carried on. Flowers were placed on the graves of every one of the 15,000 of unknown dead who sleep in the Confederate section. Beautiful floral designs were strewn over the graves of the famous, where the bodies of Robert E. Lee, Jefferson Davis and his family, Red and white were the colors. At the graves of General J. E. B. Stuart and General Fitzhugh Lee, who were cavalry commanders, yellow predominated. Especially noticeable were the decorations at the monument to General Gordon, where the bodies of Confederate soldiers who are buried in Philadelphia.

The program of the occasion, as a matter of fact, was carried out ahead of time. The parade was due to move from Fifth and Grace Streets at 5 o'clock, but it got under way a few minutes before the hour. In the cemetery, perhaps because of the rain and the threatening clouds, the exercises were begun some little time before the hour of 8, and were shortened.

Creditable Parade.
A detachment of the bicycle police headed the procession, followed by mounted police. Then followed Chief Marshal W. B. Freeman, with Major L. T. Christian as chief of staff and the other staff officers. These veterans were the Confederate gray.

A detachment of the First Regiment followed the band, and the Richmond Light Infantry Blues Battalion, with its band. Then came the First Battalion of the First Regiment, with Major L. T. Price in command. The officers of this battalion, with some of those of the Blues, came over from the State of Maryland to attend the exercises. The life and drum corps of the First Regiment led the battalion.

Perhaps 100 of the men who fought for the South near a half a century ago were in line, though many others, unable to stand the march, went in conveyances to the cemetery. Most of the veterans present were members of R. E. Lee Camp, No. 1, of George E. Lee Post, No. 2, or of A. P. Hill Camp, of Petersburg.

The carriages followed, two abreast, the first containing the Governor and the Lieutenant Governor.

General Walker Present.
A preliminary visit to the parade and at the speaker's stand was General C. Irvine Walker, of Charleston, S. C., commander of the Army of Northern Virginia, Department of United Confederate Veterans. General Walker is the guest of Colonel J. C. W. Good, Secretary of Virginia Military Records.

Arriving at Hollywood, the veterans and the Governor's party entered at the gate near the monument to the unknown Confederate dead, while the military marched around to the main entrance, being reviewed from the speaker's stand. The Blues gathered to the north and the First Regiment to the south.

Lieutenant Governor J. Taylor Ellyson, who presided at the exercises, introduced the Rev. Landon T. Mason, who offered the opening prayer.

In presenting the Governor, Mr. Ellyson referred to him as one who does his part in cherishing the memories of those who died for the South, and said this presence of the Governor was a fitting honor.

Not Honored by Him.
In his first sentence, Governor Mann disclaimed this. He said that far from honoring the occasion, he was honored by being present. "I know of only one who could honor us," he said, "and that would be General Lee."

Having been admonished, he said, to be brief, the Governor obeyed orders. He told the crowd which gathered around the stand how Lee and his not more than 15,000 men had defeated the spring of 1862 to the middle of 1863 led at bay an army of 400,000 soldiers. "The Bible," he said, "tells how Abraham agreed to offer up his only son, Isaac. All during the war the fathers and mothers of the South offered up their boys, whom they loved as Abraham loved Isaac, on the altar of their country. As one fell in battle, they would call another and send him out with their blessings."

As the men of the sixties made history for the present generation, he continued, so it is the duty of the men of today to make the same sort of history for the generations to come.

"I used to think, as a boy," the Governor declared, "that there could never be another Washington in the world's history. But I was mistaken. From the very day in which Washington was born, in Virginia, there was called Robert E. Lee to make a name in the world's history. And from the boys of to-day, if the country ever needs another Washington or another Jefferson or another Monroe or another Marshall or another Lee, Virginia will be ready to produce him."

BIGGER FAILS TO GET PERMIT

Mayor Declines Manager Kirby's Request for Free Sunday Concerts.

AGAINST LAW AND POLICY

Methodist Ministers Resent Effort to Open Doors Here.

Mayor Richardson has refused to allow a free motion picture and illustrated song entertainment in the Bijou Theatre on Sunday afternoons and evenings. He wrote Manager W. T. Kirby yesterday that it would be illegal as well as against public policy to permit the Bijou to throw open its doors for a Sunday concert.

Methodist ministers yesterday morning entered a strong protest against Manager Kirby's plan. Rev. S. C. Hatcher, Rev. W. Asbury Christian and Rev. W. W. Bargamin were appointed a committee to present a protest to the Mayor. The ministers devoted some time to a spirited discussion of Sunday concerts. They claimed that a precedent once established, all manner of Sunday entertainments would naturally follow. The ministers resented any violation of the Sabbath by theatrical performances of whatever character and proposed to wage an active campaign of protest.

The Mayor's Reply.
Mayor Richardson's reply follows: "Your letter of May 28, 1910, was received by me at 8:30 o'clock Saturday evening and has been duly considered."

"You say: 'We have been considering a proposition to throw open the Bijou Theatre on Sunday with a free moving picture and illustrated song entertainment that would embrace only educational, historic, religious and other edifying subjects,' and wish to 'ascertain the legal phase of such a step, and to know my opinion as to the propriety of the policy.'"

"In reply, I desire to say that the proposed free moving picture show on Sunday would not be legal, and would not be in harmony with public policy. It would be in conflict with the moral and religious principles of a large majority of the people of Richmond, and I cannot therefore give my permission to inaugurate it."

Jake Wells and his associates said yesterday that they did not know beforehand of the communication which Manager Kirby had sent to the Mayor. If they knew it, it could not have been sent. Their idea is that six days is enough for a theatre in one week, even if laws permitted it to open on Sundays.

SENDS ALL TO JAIL

Negroes Corralled Saturday Night Said to Be Worst Set Ever Seen in Court.

Declaring that they were the worst set of people who had ever been brought before him, Justice Crutchfield, in Police Court yesterday morning, imposed a fine of $10 and costs, making a total of $13.20 on all, and placed under $100 security for ninety days on each of the seventy-five negroes who were corralled by the police in Cunningham's Alley, the Nineteenth Street Alley and Centre Street Saturday night.

The negroes filed before him in pairs, making a unit in each of the court's habits. None could pay the fine and give the security, and the whole batch went to jail for the allotted time. It took until 4 o'clock to transport the negroes to the City Jail.

John B. Carter and Samuel Williams, colored, charged with shooting each other, were unable to appear in court, and the case was continued to June 8. Williams will probably die.

The case against Lizzie Shelton and Sallie Motley, girls, charged with breaking into the store of Joseph Baglioni and stealing therefrom a quantity of bananas, cigarettes, chewing gum, milk, pie and cigars, was dismissed. But provision will be made to care for them until they are of age.

ENTERTAIN CONVICTS

Holiday Atmosphere Penetrates Prison Walls, and Work Is Given Up.

As it was a general holiday in the city the convicts in the State Penitentiary were permitted yesterday to refrain from work, and a fine entertainment was followed by dinner at the local theatres.

One of the shows was given in the big bath room at 9 o'clock, and the second came two hours later, as it was not possible to collect the whole crowd at one time.

Louis Meyer and City Electrician Thompson manipulated the electricity, and films loaned by the theatres were kept going. Dennis O'Neil and Carl Garrett sang, and Billy Baird played the piano. Keanich's band did a big stunt with the music. There was also some penitentiary talent. Superintendent Wood delivered a short address full of advice for the convicts, and they seemed to enjoy the whole affair.

Two Years in Prison.
South Boston Negro Spotted Diamond Ring Before Being Caught.
William Watkins, colored, was tried and convicted in South Boston last Thursday of the charge of breaking into a Southern Railway ticket office and stealing therefrom $228, and was sentenced to two years in the penitentiary. The case was worked up by Special Agent Segel, of the Southern Railway, who returned to Richmond yesterday.

After robbing the office, Watkins went to Pittsburg, where he treated himself to a diamond ring and a lot of other things. He was followed by the police, and he was reported to the police. The ring and clothes were recovered. He will not need any clothes for two years.

Vehicles Stolen.
While the memorial exercises were in progress in Hollywood yesterday afternoon L. Wilson, of 302 West Grace Street, and J. L. Wingo, of 94 Floyd Avenue, were robbed of their horses and vehicles, which had been left sitting at the cemetery gate. The theft was reported to the police, but they had not recovered the horses and buggies late last night. It is thought they were driven off by mischievous boys.

MOTHERS WANT NATIONAL AND

Federation Urges Congress to Help Children by Passing New Law.

The meeting of the Richmond Federation of Mothers' Clubs, held yesterday, was well attended, and very enjoyable. The executive board held its business session, at which important reports were made by several committees. The playground committee reported the grant by the Chesapeake and Ohio of the use of vacant space for a playground in Fulton, and applicants for posting as monitors were recommended in the order in which their applications had been received. These appointments will be made public later. The committee on incorporation made a favorable report, and further necessary steps were left in the discretion of the president.

Mrs. J. B. Spiers, corresponding secretary, called attention of the board to the fact that for the past four years efforts had been made by the principal national organizations interested in the welfare of children, under the leadership of the National Child Labor Committee, to induce Congress to establish a bureau for gathering and publishing information concerning children. Senator Flint introduced a bill providing for this, which has been favorably reported, is now on the calendar and may be called up at any time. In the House arguments for the measure were heard four weeks ago, but nothing has been heard from it since. Mrs. Spiers read an editorial on this subject, entitled "Is a Child More Than a Sheep?" which showed that the government spent last year $300,000 for the eradication of "scabies," a sheep disease. The appropriation asked for the establishment of a children's Federal bureau is only $50,000.

The executive board instructed the corresponding secretary to write on behalf of the federation to the Senators for Virginia and to Representative Gardner, of the House of Representatives, urging favorable action on this bill.

Colonel A. M. Lochwitzky delivered his lecture on Russian troubles.

YOUNG EDUCATOR EARNS PROMOTION

Dr. Howard Lee McBain Made Assistant to President of George Washington.

Dr. Howard Lee McBain, who spent most of his life in Richmond and here received his education, and who has been assistant professor and dean of the College of Political Science at George Washington University, has been appointed professor of political science and assistant to Acting President Rear-Admiral Charles H. Stockton, retired. Both men were appointed at a recent meeting of the board of trustees, and will take up their duties on September 1.

Dr. McBain was born in Toronto, Canada, and is thirty-one years old. He is one of the youngest prominent educators in the country. Most of his life was spent in Richmond, where he graduated in Richmond College. After receiving his degree in 1901 he went to graduate work in Chicago University and Columbia University. From Columbia University he received the degree of doctor of philosophy in 1907. He was president of the National Constitutional Law in 1905. He was honorary fellow in constitutional law, and in 1906-1907 he was lecturer in constitutional history at the University of Virginia and in constitutional law and history in the Interstate Normal Sociological Congress in 1907.

POST-OFFICE CLERKS HOLD THEIR ANNUAL MEETING

The annual meeting of the Virginia Division of Post-Office Clerks was held in the United States court room at the Federal Building yesterday. The business meeting was followed by dinner at the Dickinson Hotel last night.

President J. L. Dozier, of Norfolk, presided. Postmaster T. A. Smith, of South Richmond, addressed the convention. Various members of the association spoke on subjects intensifying interest in the cause. A number of ideas were suggested for the benefit of the organization. There were about thirty delegates in attendance.

WOULD OVERCOME DRUGGERY OF WORK

Mr. Binford Tells Teachers to Cultivate and Preserve Ideals.

Large attendance, combined with a gratifying display of interest, characterized the annual meeting of the Teachers' Co-Operative Association, which was held last night in the auditorium of the John Marshall High School. In connection with the regular business, addresses were delivered by prominent educators, and a well arranged musical program was rendered by the musical organizations of the school.

The exercises were opened with a selection by the high school orchestra, after which reports were read by the association officers—Miss Ray Van Vort, president; Miss Martha Davis, secretary, and Miss Nina Adair, treasurer. In presenting her report the president made mention of the fact that the association is now in its fifth year, and has 228 members, an increase of twenty-four members over last year.

Owing to an indisposition, Dr. J. A. C. Chandler, Superintendent of Schools, was unable to be present as had been announced, much to the regret of those present. R. C. Stearns, secretary of the State Board of Education, was introduced, and in a brief address, spoke optimistically of educational conditions in the State at the present time. He was followed by J. H. Binford, Secretary of the association, who contrasted the rural with the city schools. Mr. Binford advocated the cultivation and preservation of ideals among teachers, which, he declared, would overcome the druggery of the work and make light the heavy task of routine instruction. The musical program, which was one of the most pleasing features of the meeting, was arranged by Professor Leslie Watson, instructor of music at the school, and was carried out under his personal direction. Several members of the orchestra and glee club were heartily applauded. An informal reception followed the meeting.

SYNOD OF NORTH AMERICA CONCLUDES ITS MEETING.

Routine matters occupied the final session of the German Evangelical Synod of North America yesterday morning. The usual resolutions of thanks were adopted, and the hospitality of the members of the local church, St. John's German Evangelical, was warmly praised.

Several new members of the district boards were elected. H. Ait, of Baltimore, was elected to the emigration board, and Rev. Paul A. Menzel, of Washington; Rev. William Batz and Rev. Mr. Kiehl were put on the jury board.

Robbed Times-Dispatch.

Edwin Beckner and George Parker, alias Julius Mantello, aged sixteen and twelve years, respectively, were arrested yesterday morning on a charge of stealing a safe from the office of the Times-Dispatch. The boys were caught in the act, and were arrested a short time later. Part of the stolen property was recovered.

SPENDS DAY FISHING.

Jeffries Casis for Trout-Corbett Arrives at Training Camp.

Ben Lombard and George J. Jeffries spent Memorial Day casting for trout in the San Lorenzo River, several miles from the training camp. The excessive heat caused the fighter to leave camp early in the day to seek recreation along the river. He was accompanied by Tex Rickard and Jack Woolsey.

The camp, however, was aroused to life by the appearance of James J. Corbett, former champion heavyweight, who is to assist in getting Jeffries into proper form to meet Johnson. Corbett slipped into camp unannounced, and went into the gymnasium "to try himself out" at some preliminary stunts.

After a half-hour with the weights and a bit of shadow boxing that was full of ginger and spryness, the fighting actor went into the handball court, where the thermometer registered about 95 degrees, and played a brace of smashing handball games. He won both and played his opponent into a state of near collapse. "I did not seem satisfied and called for a new opponent. No response met his challenge, and he left the court," said Corbett, who danced around the handball court in another session of shadow boxing.

"I'll be in real shape in about a week," said Corbett. "For several weeks, I have been working, and I feel good shape right now. If I can box anything like I used to Jeffries and I shall have some good old sparring scraps."

Corbett returned to Santa Cruz in the evening. He will live there with his wife until the end of the training camp.

Jeffries returned this afternoon with a large string of trout, saying he felt fine.
